2017 Dairy Doe of the Year, Sire- Cedarvale Park Kamal, Dam- Rosia Farm Maree Glendowen Maiyha has had a very successful year. Under 7 different judges she was Supreme Doe from some very stiff Queensland competition. The icing on the cake was the Brisbane Royal where the judge said she was a stand out winner.
Maiyha is an absolute pleasure to show. She has a very good udder and milks out beautifully. She loves attention and loves shows. Having been a premmy kid she had lots of extra care and is a really special doe. We retained a doe kid last season, Glendowen Minke, who is the image of her. We are very proud to achieve this award with this special doe.

President's Report

Vince Lombardi is quoted as saying "Perfection is not attainable, but if we choose perfection we can catch excellence." I am sure that we will be seeing some excellent stock at the shows in 2018 and the breeders will be striving for perfection in their herds. I would like to wish you all well around the various Branch and Agricultural shows. Only those who present their stock in the arena, know the hours that go into the preparation for the day of exhibiting and showcasing the wonderful dairy goat to the public. Have fun and enjoy the competition.

Please be aware of the Queensland Show rules as set out in the Branch Book for 2018 and watch for updates for the venues and show dates in the Newsletters.

*Apropos CAE accreditation; for our new members, exhibitors must be from accredited herds and be able to submit their certificate with their show entries. The scheme is undergoing an overhaul with a few minor changes to the protocol and new administration, due to the D.A.F. handing the scheme to the Society to administer. We will be lobbying for the price for testing to remain constant following the transfer of administration. Dr Sandra Baxendell will be the chief manager with Dr Leisa Denaro as her assistant. Please make sure you watch the newsletter for updates regarding the change which will be effective from 1st July 2018, with a transition period.

I would like to acknowledge the many hours that the stewards spend in organising and running shows, all in the name of the Dairy Goats. Your dedication does not go without notice and I trust that exhibitors will reflect on the work they do when striving to have a successful and happy show day.

So without further ado, let the shows begin and enjoy the day with your fellow breeders and showcase those wonderful goats.

Best wishes for the 2018 season.

Cheers Trícia

TEN TIPS FOR GOOD BIOSECURITY WHEN ATTENDING SHOWS

With the show season fast approaching, it pays to review your biosecurity procedures.

Showgrounds can pose a biosecurity risk as you will often not know what animals have been there before you and what, if any, cleaning and disinfection methods have been used.

To help reduce these risks, show coordinators should “audit” the venue and assess the risks and decide what strategies they will use to minimise those risks for competitors.

The organisers should declare what the CAE and Johnes Disease risk status for the show will be. For example, most dairy goat shows in Queensland require all goats to be from a CAE accredited property and proof of such needs to be provided. For Johnes Disease, the organisers should declare whether the show is “unassessed” or whether the requirement is for goats to be “check tested”, MN1, MN2 or MN3. This is at the discretion of the organisers however I would encourage competitors to ask show organisers what the status of the show is and what they are doing to ensure good biosecurity practices.

For competitors, here are 10 simple tips to help ensure you don’t take home an unwanted disease

1. Do not allow your goat to eat or drink from anyone else’s buckets and don’t use large “communal” troughs
2. Raise your feed and water buckets off the ground and try to use hay bags that prevent spillage onto the ground
3. Do not allow your goat to graze
4. Take your own clean bedding
5. If pens are provided, place a sheet of plastic down then the bedding on top
6. If there is inadequate separation between your pens and the next competitor then use a tarp or plastic on the dividing panel so there is a solid barrier
7. Do not squirt, spill or discard milk on the grounds....keep it in a sealed container and take it home with you. Use good milking hygiene.
8. Avoid contact with faeces from other at-risk species eg cattle, sheep, other goats. Use a stiff brush to brush off any material from hooves and your own boots before re-entering your pens and transport vehicle.
9. If the public are in contact with your goats, ensure they have correctly washed and disinfected their hands before patting your goats....bring your own hand sanitiser.....and know how to use it correctly
10. Most importantly, if your goat has been unwell recently, leave it at home....don’t put others at risk.....there will always be another show.

For any questions regarding general biosecurity at shows, please refer to the farm biosecurity website www.farmbiosecurity.com.au. You can also email questions to me at emeraldspringsdairygoats@gmail.com

HOMEOPATHY

HOMEOPATHY, Beyond Flat Earth Medicine.

An Introduction for Students and Patients by Timothy R. Dooley, N.D., M.D.

Medicine in the time of Hahnemann

The conventional system of medicine in which Hahnemann trained can only be described as crude. Popular theories came and went as to the supposed disease. Treatment likewise changed regularly over time.

The treatments of the day were often dramatic, brutal, or dangerous – large doses of toxic minerals like mercury were common. Purgatives were given in large doses to evacuate the bowels. Sudorifics were given to induce sweating. Intentionally bleeding a patient was a common practice – patients were relieved of blood until their ears rang (a sign of impending shock) and they were pale from acute blood loss. At that point the bleeding was stopped, as no more “bad humors” could be expelled without endangering the patient’s life.

Physicians at the time were considered well-educated. They had studied their art in large prestigious institutions. They kept up with the latest advances in the medical sciences such as physiology, pathology, and anatomy. People today look back and gasp at the fundamental ignorance of these practitioners. “How is it,” people query, “that these physicians could overlook the most basic and common sense elements of biologic process and life? How could they think these brutal treatments could benefit anyone?”

At the time these treatments were popular, they actually correlated with the level of disease perception. The fact is: no disease-oriented treatment can be effective beyond the perception of the disease.

For example, fever was perceived as an over-abundance of blood -- you could see the red face and feel the bounding pulse. After bleeding the patient, the red face would be gone and the pulse less bounding. These findings tended to confirm the erroneous perception and treatment of fever in the minds of both the physician and populace. Today, disease-oriented treatments sometimes suffer from this same short-sightedness.

Physicians of that era were exclusively male. They maintained a tight society and exerted their influence against those perceived as crossing into their territory.

The true healers of the era, before the advent of homeopathy, were the herbalists. Mostly female, they practised an art passed through the generations that respected the fundamental ability of the body to heal itself. The patient of that era was fortunate to be in the hands of such a healer. With nutritious broths and simple herbal medicines, the patient’s chances of recovery were enhanced by the treatment.

The herbalists were largely opposed by the medical establishment. They were belittled as backwards, uneducated or even dangerous. Many women persecuted as witches were actually herbal healers, performing their services, often without remuneration, for the welfare of the community.

Such was the medical world in which Hahnemann trained. Being a man of integrity as well as profound intelligence, he discontinued this practice of medicine which he perceived as harmful.

SOUTH EAST QUEENSLAND GOAT CLUB END OF SUMMER FIELD DAY

17th February at Boyland, lecturer Dr. Sandra Baxendell

The day began with morning tea and registration for the Field Day and for the Famacha training course which followed the rest of the day's sessions. The first demonstration was an ultrasound on one of the club members does. With the breeding season coming up Sandra's morning session covered breeding the does, methods of bringing them on early in the season, care of the pregnant doe, vaccinations, toxemia and other problems. With the aid of a cardboard box with some pink foam rubber in it to represent a vagina and a cute stuffed toy (a baby lamb), Sandra demonstrated each different type of birthing and how to deliver the kids. This was accompanied by much laughter and comments!!! Followed by care of newborn kids, stomach tubing and other emergency treatments. There was a question time followed by lunch.

The afternoon session covered worms, worming and a very interesting announcement on a new way of fighting the increasing worm problems we are facing. There have been very successful trials done on goats and it should be available soon. Following question time and for a few afternoon tea, (most were too stuffed from lunch), out came the goats and Sandra, with the help of husband Ron, conducted a training session on using the Famacha card, Ron tested the participants and then presented them with certificates.

The day was well attended, there were 13 dairy goat studs, 12 mini goat studs and 1 boer goat stud represented, some came from interstate and some from Central Queensland.

Many thanks to Sandra, for presenting such an enjoyable and information filled day. Big thanks to Bazil and Neil for setting up the seating, tarps, BBQ and pen area where the goats were brought for the hands on training. Thanks to Graeme for cooking a mean BBQ. Thanks also go to Sandra (no.2), Kim, Ron, Linda, Clary, Jemima and Liz who arrived early to help with the food setting up, Donna and Sandra (no.2) for their help in the food preparation and to all those that helped in dismantling quickly at the end when we received a possible storm warning. It was fine, hot and loaded with humidity; I almost drained the tank keeping up the iced water to everyone.

A copy of the results which were sent to G Rogers on request of the Secretary due to the lateness of them being sent, will be forwarded to all committee members to view and an email discussion and resolution will be done before the end of the year. Secretary is to verify the Special Committee meeting by email.
